Our government asked for 20 atomic inspections in the Soviet Union, but the Soviets have whittled us down to two, knowing that they are never going to allow any kind of inspection, any more than Castro will. Don't we have one John L. Lewis to put up against Khrushchev?

Who in our State Department prevented us from tearing down the Berlin Wall the day it was put up? Now that it is reinforced it would take thousands of lives to get it down. And in Cuba, who in our State Department prevented us from slapping Castro down and ending communism in Cuba? Today thousands of our boys will have to die to wipe out Castro.

WAS McCARTHY RIGHT?

The poisonous stream of communism which flows out of the Soviet Union is threatening to end freedom and to wreck the world. When we consider the Cuban situation, we realize how close this danger is to us. (Khrushchev has been building fires all over the world to distract our attention from our own security, to encourage us to dissipate our wealth and manpower while he is building up a Russian base 90 miles from Florida.

How and why did Russia get into such a position of power? History has the answer. It was the United States which gave the communists their chance. Thirty years ago, the United States rescued Stalin at the depth of communism's failure to make good as a guiding force in Russia. The method of rescue wds the continued and misguided U. S. diplomatic recognition to the Soviet regime.

We had ample warning from the communist leaders themselves that our original policy of non-recognition was born of wisdom. In 1922, Lenin said, "The eternal in the Russian revolution is the fact that it is the beginning of the world revolution." Trotzsky was even more explicit when he said "Revolution is coming in Europe as well as in America, systematically, step by step, stubbornly and with gnashing of teeth in both camps. It will be long protracted, cruel, and bloody." Our Secretary of State remarked at the time, "There should be no encouragement to those efforts of the Soviet authorities to visit upon other peoples the disasters that have overwhelmed the Russian people."

All these statements were made in 1922. Not long after, in 1924, Lenin died. His regime was a failure, marked by murder and destruction. The new ruler Stalin was a master at wrecking other people's hopes and aims. Also like Lenin, he was not able to formulate an orderly government of his own. He could only kill and destroy. In the winter of 1930, his way of handling rebellious peasants was to exterminate them, and Khrushchev was his lieutenant. Approximately 12 million Russians were starved to death because they objected to giving their cows, pigs, and plots of land to the government.

The Russian government desperately needed prestige. Lacking it in Europe, they searched elsewhere, and we were the suckers. Maxim Litvinov, the Russian foreign minister, a very crafty operator, promised that Russia would pay its long-standing debts owed to America since Czarist times. We still had not learned our lesson—and Communism stayed alive in Russia because of our official recognition of the Soviet government. Thanks to our Lend-Lease program, Stalin managed to separate the U. S. from $11 billion in war supplies, machinery, transportation equipment, raw materials, foodstuff—anything which would bolster the sagging Russian economy. Stalin was quick to accept the support of the despised, capitalistic United States. The United Nations was the vehicle by which Russia gained further diplomatic recognition. In order to be a member of the UN, all the countries of the non-Axis world were forced to declare war and to recognize the Allied Powers. Russia was an Allied Power.

When World War II ended, the communists held 7% of the world's people in slavery. Now they enslave at least 35% of the people of the world, and dominate 25% of the earth's surface. These victories have been won by espionage, incitement to revolt, and internal subversion.

To understand all that has happened, one must understand the full extent of the assistance given Soviet Russia during the last days of the war, when Allied forces were deliberately held back so that Russian forces could enter Berlin first. Thus Russia grabbed most of the industrial power of Germany. Whole factories were dismantled and shipped to Russia, although this was in violation of the agreement among the allies that all armament factories would be destroyed. At the Yalta Conference, Stalin asked for and later received about 80% of Germany's industrial might as "reparations."

German scientists who tried desperately to surrender during the last days of the war were refused. The majority were purposely permitted to fall into Soviet hands, thus allowing the communists to gain the space development plans worked out by the German scientists for manned rockets, satellites and space stations. This one mistake has and will continue to cost billions of dollars in tax money, in the race for space, not counting the fear of total atomic destruction we have lived with for years, and are saddling on to our children and grandchildren.

The United States cannot escape responsibility for turning over Central Europe to the Soviet Union. And Americans cannot shut their eyes to the fact that the Castro takeover of Cuba was aided and abetted by persons inside our own government.

Today, almost 30 years after official U. S. recognition of Communist Russia, we are faced with this fact:

Despite the high hopes we held during the time of our positive action in the Cuban crisis, all the communists have to do to achieve final victory over freedom is to continue on the same course they have taken in the past. All we have poured out to the nations of the world cannot protect us. Russia can't be bought off. Unless we adopt a new attitude, and employ new tactics to save freedom, Khrushchev's promise to bury us, repeated again last week, will come true. Now the United Nations proposes to send a delegation to make a study of the agricultural prospects of Cuba, with the view to assisting them to be self supporting. We are the main contributors to the UN. Unless there is a change, Russia, Red China, and Cuba will collaborate to throw a shovelful of dirt on the grave of the capitalist free enterprise system.

The Way of a Christian

Jesus said to His Disciples:

"For what doth it profit a man if he gain the whole world and suffer the loss of his own soul?" (Matthew 16:26)

This is the way of Christ and, of course, it applies to each and every one of us as Christians.

The Marxism (communism) of our day points in exactly the opposite direction—to gain the whole world and destroy the soul.

In their defense against Marxism, intelligent and cultured Christian people in Europe tried to protect the Soul and Spirit of the peoples of all Europe. However, their noble aim—to save both the inhabitants of Europe and the whole world—was defeated, as is well-known, by World War II. In describing the results of communism in our time, Dr. R. Swinburne Clymer uses the following significant lines in his book, THE AGE OF TREASON: "fear those who by usurped power have the means to destroy man's manhood, thereby making him incapable of thinking, reasoning and bereft of the power of imagination; no longer a human creature, but a robot or zombie, prevented from fulfilling his Divine destiny by making it impossible to awaken the Soul." In thus reducing the human being to the status of an animal, communism is assured one phase in its success—and that a most important one. Marxism also attempts (through infiltration) dominion over all humanity.

Never before have we seen the like of racial discrimination. Communism has introduced it, and now seeks to mongrelize the races. Through the medium of movies, shows, TV, jazz, etc., we can observe that mongrelization and prostitution are complements of each other.

A perfect example of communist organization will be found in the United Nations, which represents all colors, races, creeds and religions. The U. N. talks "peace," yet at no time in history have there been more small wars and tension among nations. Why? Because the U. N. prefers to "meddle" in the affairs of a given country, rather than to give it true help; it invades a nation with its own military forces without the consent of that nation, and uses the monies of all nations to accomplish its own selfish purposes! UNESCO, one of the mightiest arms of the U. N., has extended its authority and teachings into every classroom in "The West," and within its scope of activities is included the teaching of sex to all little children of the white race. Then we wonder why juvenile delinquency is so rampant! Young girls of 13 are, as a result of all this, becoming prostitutes, either in actuality, or in their minds through the corruption of their moral sense by UNESCO's filthy methods of teaching sex. However, most of the people have been so mesmerized by Liberal, Leftist and Socialist influence that they fail to recognize the true cause of the decadence of the younger generation of today.

Destroy the Spirit and the Race will be killed—destroy the Race and we will be forced to accept Mongrelization and Death. So, you see, the "Peace" of the U. N. is a contradiction in terms and belongs to communism, or the Anti-Christ. But because all peoples will be subdued and blinded by this "peace" propaganda, they will come to worship the Anti-Christ, believing him to be the real Christ!

Our culture is fast becoming so decadent that we now have developed the "Cult of the Ugly" (best exemplified in the Arts), whereby we are ever so gradually introduced to Mongrelization. Juvenile crime and sex teaching will always go hand in hand, and this fact was especially noted after the victory of communism in 1945. At the present time, the United States leads all countries in juvenile delinquency, and this condition is continuing to grow at an alarming rate! Police cannot name one section of the Criminal Code with which American Youth—boy and girl alike—is not familiar; the murder of parents and of brothers and sisters, as well as all types of sex murders, the committing of robberies, hold-ups, ordinary kidnappings and dope smuggling, etc.—all are most commonplace today!

"Pilate Tried To Save Jesus"

MYSTERIOUS DOCUMENT

London Jewish Chronicle, Feb. 8, 1963

An ancient document suggesting that Pontius Pilate strove desperately to save Jesus's life but was prevented from doing so by the fury of the Jews has been discovered in Liverpool, and the Vatican has stated that it may be historically correct.

But some Christian theologians in this country think that it will do nothing to increase anti-Semitism and that, in that respect, it is not to be taken seriously.

The document purports to be a translation of a letter from Pilate to the Emperor Tiberias, in which Pilate declared he was desperate to save the life of Jesus and sent for 2,000 reinforcements, which did not arrive till the day after the crucifixion. He also stated that, after the resurrection, he questioned the officer in charge of the grave, who said that it was not true that the guards had fallen asleep or that the body had been stolen.

Vatican View

According to the Vatican authorities who examined it, the document is apocryphal, having been written probably in the fourth or fifth century. But it may contain historically correct facts because it was written soon after the events described. The document is now being studied by historians at Liverpool University.

A spokesman at the Archbishop's House told me that he did not think the document, even if published, would in any way propagate anti-Semitism.

The Rev. W. W. Simpson, General Secretary of the Council of Christians and Jews, said that the document did not add anything to the facts known about Pilate.
